

Lots of people want to join our committee! What should we do?

Parents

- If more parents than needed apply to be on your Diversity Committee don't turn them away! Why not encourage them to set up an events group – it could be a subgroup of your Diversity Committee!
- They could also set up a parents networking group – a way for parents to come together – it could be to have a coffee morning, go walking, learn a skill, or something else

Students

Lots of students usually want to join the Diversity Committee. Here are some ways you can select them:

- Ask students to write a letter or make a picture showing why they want to join the Diversity Committee - the best letters/pictures will win a place
- Hold school or class elections
- Ask teachers to nominate students
- Pick names out of a hat
- Another way: your school should decide the fairest way of doing it
